McCABE'S WATCHES.

THE proper pride of the Proprietors of the late firm of JAS. McCABE & Co., of the Royal Exchange, London, in refusing tempting offers for their good-will when retiring from business, while striking a sympathetic chord of admiration throughout the East, has awakened a feeling of regret that so admirable and highly esteemed a class of watches should be no longer procurable. MARCKS & COMPANY, Limited, have been at considerable pains to reproduce by the Agency of McCabe's old hands some of the most popular styles of Watches which were formerly identified with Jas. McCabe's name, and which are identical in all respects, except of course, that they bear the name of MARCKS & Co., Limited, Bombay and Poona.

THE FRERE-FLETCHER SCHOOL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me to correct a gross misstatement which appears in the unauthorised report of the Frere-Fletcher School published in your issue of this date. The report written by me was the report of the trustees of the school, in whose hands the whole management of the school is placed by trust deeds in the most explicit terms. This report the Lady Superintendent appears to have amended on her own responsibility, making it appear to be her report, suppressing some statements and adding others. The gross misstatement to which I allude is contained in the following words :—"I greatly wished to have the school examined by a Government Educational Inspector, but my plan was set aside by the secretary of the school; the italics are mine. This is the first I have heard of the lady Superintendent's wish. The statement is therefore absolutely untrue that I set aside her plan. In the next place, as everyone knows who knows anything at all about the educational talk in this presidency, it is necessary to obtain the consent of the Director of Public Instruction before a school can be brought under the operation of the grant-in-aid rules. It is due to Miss Prescott for me further to make known to the public the fact that a sum of Rs. 800, invested in Government paper, was left to the trustees by that lady on her departure for England with a request that the annual interest might be spent on the purchase of two prizes, to be called the Prescott prizes. This fact of course was mentioned in the report adopted by the Trustees, but it has been omitted in the report made by Mrs. Frid; and more than this, Mrs. Frid declined to nominate for these prizes.—I remain yours, &c.,

A. GOLDWYER LEWIS,
Hon. Sec. Frere-Fletcher School.

Bombay, Feb. 15.

P. S.—I enclose the report adopted by the trustees, and shall be glad if you have space for its publication.

The following is the report to which the Rev. A. Goldwyer Lewis refers :—

In presenting their first Report of the Frere-Fletcher School to the public, the trustees are of opinion that it is advisable to review the history of the school as briefly as possible, and, with equal brevity, to describe its constitution. The school was originally established in 1861 by the Rev. W. K. Fletcher, the then Senior Presidency Chaplain, under the name of "the Fort Christian School," in close connection with the Cathedral; indeed it was at first decided that the schools (for the establishment of two schools, one for boys and one for girls, was contemplated in the first instance) should bear the title of "The Cathedral Schools." From the first this school was intended for the education of both Christian and non-Christian pupils; as sufficient funds were not forthcoming for the establishment of two schools, the efforts of the founders were concentrated on the establishment of a girls' school only. For many years the work of the school was carried on under great difficulties. Until the present building was completed and opened in March 1878, the school was held sometimes in tents, at one time in the Cooperage, and at other times in different rented premises in the Fort. In the year 1879, by the express desire of Miss Prescott, and with the sanction of Government and of the Trustees, the name of the school was changed from that of "The Fort Christian School" to that of "The Frere-Fletcher School," the new title being adopted out of respect to the memory of the Reverend W. K. Fletcher, and in consideration of the active sympathy given by Sir Bartle Frere to the work of the school. The existence of the school is in a large measure due to the noble and self-denying efforts of Miss Prescott, who sacrificed twenty-one years of her life and a large portion of her private fortune, in furthering the welfare of this institution. The chief benefactor after the first establishment of the school was Mr. Premchand Roychand, who contributed no less a sum than Rs. 50,000 of the Rs. 75,000 which the erection of the new building cost. An endowment fund of Rs. 50,000 has been raised for the purpose of maintaining, clothing and teaching orphan European and Eurasian girls. Of this fund Rs. 25,000 was raised partly by Miss Prescott's efforts in India and in England, and partly by a generous grant of £500 from the S. P. C. K., while Government made an equal grant of Rs. 25,000. There is also a reserve fund of some few thousands of rupees invested in Government paper. The income from this source is to be expended on the founding of certain annual prizes, and on such contingent expenses as the annual repairs to the building, taxes, insurance against fire, &c.

On the 28th of September 1885, Mrs. Frid came out from England to take up the appointment of Lady Superintendent of the school, and amid universal regret Miss Prescott left India to enjoy a little well-earned rest on the 6th of March 1886.

The constitution of the school is somewhat peculiar. As has already been shown, it is a mixed school for the education, that is to say, of Christian and non-Christian children. In view of the munificent gift of Mr. Premchand Roychand, the deed of constitution provides that at least one-third of the total number of pupils shall be natives, if such a number can be found. By the terms of same deed, the school is distinctly said to be a Church of England school and is closely connected with the Cathedral. No non-Christian children are to be compelled to attend religious instruction, and that instruction is to be given under the direction of the Cathedral chaplains. The nomination of pupils is to be made by the Lady Superintendent with the sanction of the Senior Chaplain at the Cathedral, and in case of difference between them, the question of such nomination and admission is to be decided by a reference to the trustees. The deed appoints that the Archdeacon, the Senior Presidency Chaplain, the Accountant General, the Collector of Bombay, and the Principal of Elphinstone College shall form a body of ex-officio trustees, but such of the trustees as are laymen must be members of the Church of England.

Under the terms of later deed of covenant executed in 1879, the school was made subject to the visits of the Government Educational officers, but it is not under the operation of the grant-in-aid rules, inasmuch as the standards laid down in the Bombay Educational Code are not the standards of the classes. The same deed provides that 12 orphans at least shall be maintained, the cost of their maintenance being met by the income of the Endowment Fund. These orphans are to be nominated by the trustees, or in default by the Bishop of the Diocese.

At the present time there are 63 names on the books, viz., 48 Parsis, 2 Hindus, 2 Jews, and 11 Europeans, 10 of the latter being orphan boarders. The fees for the year 1886 amounted to Rs. 2,769. The schools were examined towards the end of 1886 by the Rev. E. S. Hall Garrison Chaplain, and Mr. Savage, Head Master of the Cathedral Boys' School, and the thanks of the Trustees are due to these gentlemen for their trouble.

No pupils presented themselves for the Matriculation Examination in 1886, but in 1885 one pupil passed this test successfully.

Ten orphans have been admitted as boarders, but it is found that the income from the Endowment Fund is not sufficient to support even this number of boarders. The average cost per head of clothing and maintaining these children is Rs. 28 per mensem, and the yearly income accruing from the Endowment Fund is only Rs. 2,000. On her departure for England the pupils of the school and their friends presented Miss Prescott with Rs. 800 as a testimony of their esteem and affection; with characteristic generosity Miss Prescott handed the money over to the school to be invested in Government 4 per cent. paper, requesting that the annual income might be spent on two prizes, one for proficiency in English, open to native and Jewish pupils, the other for general proficiency and good conduct, open to the whole school.

In bringing their report to a conclusion, the trustees hope that the school may continue to do as much good in the future as it has done in the past.

JUBILEE HONOURS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—The public of Bombay must have been exceedingly pleased to observe, in the list of honors published in to-day's issue of your paper, the distinction which has been conferred on our most worthy fellow-citizen, Sir Dinshaw Manockji Petit. But while this is the case, I beg to enquire whether there is any good reason why his predecessor in office should not be similarly honoured? The Jubilee year of her Majesty's reign commenced in June 1886 and will terminate in June next. Why should not the Sheriffs in office at its commencement be equally honoured with those in office during its progress, and who may not be in office at its close?—Yours, &c.,

Feb. 17. J. S. P.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child, suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to the taste, it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere, at 1s. 1½d. per bottle, wholesale by the Anglo-American Drug Company, Limited, 33, Farringdon road London.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

BOMBAY MARKET REPORT.

THURSDAY EVENING, FEB. 17.

Owing to general holidays yesterday and to-day for the Jubilee celebration, our commercial review embraces a period of only four working days; and a holiday feeling on two of these has tended to restrict the volume of business. But for this interruption we should probably have been able to report a more active week in one branch of our trade than has been the case since the beginning of the year. The most noticeable circumstance affecting our trade from outside since last Thursday has been the publication of the final Report of the Washington Agricultural Bureau, estimating the outturn of the American Cotton crop at 6,460,000 bales; while, locally, the news of damage to the Broach and Dholleràh crop—exaggerated, as pessimist reports always are, by native dealers—has been the main feature of interest. Although there has been little in the governing markets at Liverpool and New York to foster confidence in a 'bull' view of the future; and nothing here to cause serious alarm for the unharvested portion of the crop—as the severe weather was of short duration, and was only hurtful in some localities—the outcome of these influences has been considerable animation in Cotton, compared with the state of things which has lately prevailed, during the days in which the market has been open. In other Produce business as continued as dull as ever. Imports generally have been slow of sale, and the holidays have a good deal interfered with business. Money can hardly be called much easier, though at the moment there is a lull in demand Exchange has been a tame and almost lifeless market; and rates closed for the holidays the same as on last Thursday for demand Bank Bills, and 1-32d. higher for three months' sight Credits. Freights are dull for forward business, but firmer for ready engagements; and the supply of possible tonnage has been reduced by the chartering of several steamers which have passed Suez for the Rice Ports.

MONEY was rather easier in the open market after last mail left; but the minimum rate of discount of the Bank of Bombay remains at 8 per cent. There was no great change either way in the Bank's position at the close of the week; and business has, in the meantime, been on so small a scale, that it is not likely to have been much since. But there is nothing in the situation to warrant the expectation of cheaper money later on in the season; on the contrary, the smaller the compass of time into which the financing of our fair season exports is compressed, the more severe will the strain be likely to be when it comes.

EXCHANGE was rather irregular on last mail day, but closed steady on the whole, with Bank demand unchanged, and three months' sight Credits 1-32d. higher than they were on the previous day, though they were done at the old rate for delivery after the mail. Next day the tone was steady, with 1s. 6¼d. as the general rate for three months' sight Credits, and forward rates at the usual reduction; but business was on a most limited scale. The market opened quiet at the beginning of the week, and continued so all Monday, the few transactions which took place having been at Saturday's rates. Three months' sight Credits for delivery after the 20th instant were done at 1s. 6 3-32d. Tuesday was a dull day with hardly enough doing to fix rates; but generally they were 1-32d. lower than on the previous day, and closed for the holidays at our quotations. Bombay appears to have got no Bills at the usual Council biddings in London yesterday, Calcutta having taken 16 lakhs at 1s. 5 29-32d. in full of Tenders: but an extra allotment of 2 lakhs Bills on Bombay was made at 1-16d. less, viz., 1s. 5 27-32d.; while 4 lakhs of Wire Transfers on Calcutta were sold at 1s. 5 29-32d. The only other home influence likely to affect our market on its re-opening would be Bar Silver; but this metal continues to be quoted by Reuter at 46 11-16d., Silver Securities, however, being rather lower.

GOVERNMENT PAPER has not attracted much attention, but there has been an improvement in the tone of the market, and such business as has been transacted has been at an advance on our quotations of a week ago. Fours at one time touched 95½; but this rate was not maintained, and at closing on Tuesday the price was 95 3-16d. Four-and-a-half per cents. may be called ⅛ per cent. higher at 99½; but this quotation is nearly nominal, business in this paper being at long intervals.

SHARES were rather flat after last mail left, and few transactions took place; but before the market closed for the holidays a number of transactions, chiefly in Mill and Press Scrip leading to the following changes as per the accompanying list. The following Press shares declined:—Colaba Press, Rs. 20; Bellary, East India, Munmar, and Scinde, Rs. 15; Dhollerah P. and G., and Motussil, Rs. 5; and New Indian, Rs. 2½. The Albert Press of Kurrachee, and the Prince of Wales Press, both advanced Rs. 10 per share. There has been a decline of Rs. 45 in the Hindoostan Mill; and in others as follows:—Western India, Rs. 25; Leopold, Rs. 14; Bombay United, Morarji Gokaldas, and People of India, Rs. 10; Jevraz Balloo, Rs. 7½; Khandeish, New Great Eastern, and Ripon, Rs. 5 each; Maneckji Petit, and Mazagon, Rs. 2½; Prince of Wales, Rs. 2. The Framji Petit Mill shares, on the other hand, have advanced Rs. 55; and the Connaught, Rs. 40; Alfred Manufacturing, City of Bombay, and Soonderdas, Rs. 10 each; Colaba Land and Mill, and Sholapore, Rs. 3 each; and Anglo-Indian Rs. 3. In Miscellaneous concerns we have to note an advance, compared with last Thursday's quotations of Rs. 65, in Treacher & Co.; of Rs. 9 in Bapty and Co.; of Rs. 8, in Badham Pile; of Rs. 5 in Bombay Saw Mills; of Rs. 3 in Pearse and Co.; and of Rs. 2 in Bombay Ice Manufacturing. The National Bank shares have declined Rs. 2; and the Municipal Bonds 5-16th. The Kaiser-i-Hind Gold Mining shares are Re. 1 lower.

IMPORTS.

PIECE-GOODS.—Business, not likely to be large in any case under the present conditions of the market, has been further restricted during the last few days by the holidays, and the clearances from the bazaar have been on a very moderate scale. The up-country demand for Grey Shirtings continues to be very poor, and, with increasing stocks, dealers are naturally anxious sellers, and though prices are quoted the same as before, some concession would probably be made to move stock. Grey Printers are very dull; and other staple Greys if in rather better demand than these, are still very quiet, though nominally unchanged in value. Grey Drills, have fallen 1 a. per piece, but are steady at the decline. Grey Dhoties are in very heavy stocks, and sales of anything like large quantities are impossible, unless at a heavy concession in price. Bleached Goods are unchanged in position or value; and the same may be said of Dyed, Printed, and Turkey Red Cloths. Local Goods are quiet but steady; and have been taken to the extent of some 2,000 bales.

YARNS.—Imported are dull of sale and weak in price, but quotations are nominally the same. Some 4,800 bales of local spinnings, chiefly of No. 20s. have been taken at a rise of 1-32 for the superior qualities. Latest news by wire from China reports the sale of 6,200 bales of India Yarn for the fortnight ending on the 13th instant.

METALS.—In Metals generally the business done has been small, though there is no quotable change in prices. Iron must be called dull; while Copper, both Brasiers' and Sheathing, and Yellow Metal, are decidedly quiet.

COALS.—Ready supplies are in good demand, Powell's Duffryn, Cardiff, and Davison's, on the Bunder are selling at Rs. 32 to Rs. 33 per ton. January and February shipments are in good demand on account of the small parcels advised as on the way, and for future delivery sellers are asking Re. 1 per ton above last quotations, viz., Rs. 19 for February; Rs. 17½ for February-March; and Rs. 17 per ton for March-April.

EXPORTS.

COTTON.—On the receipt of the American Bureau Report last mail day the market showed signs of greater firmness, more especially on the part of Native dealers, however, European buyers not appearing to take so strong a view of things either as to the future of American Cotton, or the damage to a portion of our local crop through frost. A fair amount of business was transacted, chiefly between Natives, and sales of ready Bengals were reported: of ready Bengals at Rs. 128 to Rs. 130 for "Good," and at Rs. 140 to Rs. 141 for "Fully Good" qualities. "Good" Julgaum changed hands at Rs. 170½; "Fully Good" at Rs. 179 per candy. Good Broach was quoted at Rs. 210 for March delivery. Good Bhownuggur, for April delivery, would have been taken at Rs. 180 for "Good,"; Rs. 185 for "Fully Good"; and Rs. 196 for "Fine" April delivery, by Native buyers, but there were no sellers. On the following day the market was much quieter, and the high prices asked by dealers when any enquiry was made, checked further business for a time. At the beginning of the week there was a quiet feeling again as far as shippers were concerned, though Native dealers were firm in their pretensions. News was received, however, in the course of the day that warm weather had set in in the Dholleràh circle; and that it was only in one or two districts that harm had been done by the frost. Authentic news from the Broach circle is not yet to-hand as to the actual damage done; but the weather has since been warm there again, and we have long been prepared for a very late crop from that quarter. The day before our market closed for the holidays, a considerable business was done, especially in Oomrawuttee descriptions from stock, say "Good" Sheagaum at Rs. 178; Good Julgaum at Rs. 172; Good Akola at Rs. 176; and Barsee at Rs. 176 to Rs. 178 per candy. Bhownuggur was also in demand for April at Rs. 179-80 for "Good"; and Rs. 184-5 per "Fully Good"; and there were buyers of "Good" at Rs. 179 for May delivery. We hear that some business has been done in ready good-stapled Oomras during the holidays at Rs. 178 per candy for "Good."

WHEAT AND SEEDS.—We can report no change in the position of this market which for some time has almost ceased to count in current business. The few transactions which are reported from time to time are between the Native dealers, who have the market to themselves, and, when asked for quotations, name rates which are quite out of the reach of shippers. The only transaction of importance in Wheat or Seeds, which has been reported since our last, is the cancellation by a European firm of contracts for Red Delhi Rape Seed at Rs. 4-14 per cwt., which they had sold for April-May delivery. The following were the closing quotations on Tuesday:—

The Bombay Gazette

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1887.

THE Governor of Bombay gave to his address at the Town Hall on Jubilee Day the character of a brief chronicle and abstract of the years that have passed since the Queen came to the Throne. The appropriateness of every reference will be at once recognized, and as an endeavour to indicate, in a series of striking generalizations, the lines on which the progress of England and of India has been worked out since 1837 nothing could have been more effective. The passages in which his Excellency spoke of the advance that the capital of this Presidency has made in wealth and activity in the period under review are as suggestive as they are interesting. They make up a retrospect of which the significance is not likely to escape notice in a community such as ours is, trained by experience and urged by the enterprising spirit amongst its members to "to look before and after" and to work, rather than to "sigh, for that which is not." The high-water mark of such commercial, intellectual, and social progress as India has made has usually been shown in the records of this city. And so when Lord Reay told of what had been done for wealth and industry and enlightenment in Bombay and in the Bombay Presidency he was in the main following the most clearly marked courses of Indian progress. Of something of this sort Mr. Alexander Mackenzie, the Home Secretary to the Government of India, must have been thinking when in a recent speech in London on the question of the capital of India he acknowledged that the tone of feeling in this city was more broad and open and advanced than in Calcutta, adding reasons whose cogency we at all events shall not dispute for believing that Bombay must for all practical purposes be regarded as the commercial capital of the country. To us in Bombay the best lessons of the Governor's survey of our progress will be lost if we regard it simply as a retrospect. There is the promise and the potency of greater things in the eloquent figures with which his Excellency illustrated our past achievements. The seven-fold multiplication of the exports of the port of Bombay during the reign and the ten-fold growth of our imports in the same period represent a growth which we may reasonably expect to be continuous. Bombay is so largely the wheat exporting port of India that nearly every increase in the area under wheat in the western and the central and in part of the northern provinces, and every fresh development of the railway system through those regions, must add to the activities of the port. The Port Trustees seem to be almost the only public body in these times which can afford to reduce its charges and give away a portion of its profits. The rest of the world may envy them their good fortune, but in envying them their neighbours will be not the less able to understand what their prosperity will imply in relation to the future as well as to the present of the port. It is symptomatic not only of a present prosperity which Lord Reay justly observes is one of the most remarkable events of the Victorian reign, but of the confidence of plain business men in the future of the city. But the evolution of the greater Bombay which presents itself to the calculating imagination alike of merchants and of city fathers and of the Government must not be left to chance. Those whose confidence in the future of the city is most unbounded are the most conscious of the fact that its progress will be largely dependent upon effort and policy. Cities that grow of themselves do not usually grow well, and there is a want of real health in the prosperity even of their best days. One of the first practical questions that confronts us in Bombay is—assuming that we are destined to grow largely—how are we to secure the space within which to grow healthily? We have long since reached the point at which Bombay could be described as a crowded city. We are proud enough of the estimate which a witness of such cosmopolitan judgment as Lord Reay passed upon Bombay when he called it the other day one of the most beautiful towns in the Empire, perhaps in the world. But we live on an island, limited in its area, and year by year the great and growing want is a want of more breathing room, and more elbow room. The time may come when the citizens will awaken to a keener consciousness than now prevails of the incompatibility of such overcrowding as that which is to be found in some of the streets in the Fort—to say nothing of the native town—with a profession of municipal government on sanitary principles. It may be that a solution of our difficulties in the native town and suburbs must be sought for in an effort to build high instead of building broad. Meantime are there no obstacles to the extension of the boundaries of Bombay which are capable of removal? We have recently shown that on the western side of Malabar Hill and Cumballa Hill there is still a large unappropriated area for building upon, reasonably accessible, and for the most part breezy. Worlee would make a healthy and convenient suburb but for the nuisance of the sewage outfall, which has made one of the few pretty villages in the neighbourhood a deserted village so far as Europeans are concerned. But even that plague and abomination is not immoveable. Let the outfall be moved a few miles to the north, and Worlee would become a place of delight, and Breach Candy, all too conscious at times of what is in the wind, will be thankful. Trombay is another direction in which people used more frequently to turn a few years ago than they do now, when the question of finding room to build houses upon comes up for discussion. Now, as then, the great difficulty is that of communication. But the railway companies, who have of late shown a good deal of favour to the principle of feeder lines, might be looked to to help in any scheme for the opening up of that beautiful neighbourhood which was based upon commercial principles, and which gave reasonable assurance of success. No one who, in sailing round the harbour, surveys the slopes of the great Trombay Hill, and the magnificent prospect on land and sea which lies before it, will admit without reluctance that the locality can make no contribution to the solution of the problem. Then again have we done all that it is possible to do on the shores of Back Bay? The name is of ill omen, and we fear that the smallest suggestion for reclaiming land in that direction will labour under all those disadvantages which accompany an unlucky name. But we cannot afford to thrust aside any good scheme because it bears a bad name, and we ought not to be deterred merely by the memories of 1865 from seeking even in the direction of Back Bay for relief from the pressure of overcrowding. Land is yearly growing dearer in the city, and dearer house rents and increasing cost of living follow closely in the train of dear land. This question is one to which the Government of Bombay is known to be anything but indifferent, though complaints are heard often enough that the conditions which it attaches to the sale of building land in the island do not seem to indicate a very strong desire to help in the solution of the problem. That the city has not by any means reached the limits of its development is sufficiently a mater of certitude to warrant any practicable measures that may be taken for increasing the building area of the city. The rate of our progress would be certain to be rapidly accelerated if, encouraged by the success of efforts now in preparation to introduce the spinning of finer counts of yarn in the Bombay mills, our mill industry were to undergo the large and rapid extension which the success of the experiment would lead to. We have therefore to shape our municipal policy on the assumption not only of a certain continuance in the growth of the city, but of a possible growth at no distant date at a rate of which we have not as yet had any experience.

WE hear that there is every reason to believe that the announcement that the Bengal-Nagpur scheme has been sanctioned by the Secretary of State was well founded, though somewhat premature. An agreement has certainly been arrived at between the Secretary of State and the London Syndicate which has put this work in hand.

I. H. THE GAEKWAR will arrive in Bombay on Friday next, to take the P. and O. steamer to Colombo for change of air. On returning from Colombo his Highness will proceed to Mahableshwar.

THE PORT TRUST AND THE PILOTAGE FEES.

THE Government of Bombay have passed the following Resolution in regard to the proposed reduction of Pilotage Fees:—

His Excellency in Council is willing to ask the Governor-General in Council to sanction the proposed reduction in the pilotage fees, but before doing so he desires that the question of the harbour masters' and pilots' allowances should be fully considered and settled, and an amended by law should be submitted by the Trustees giving effect to the decision on the subject. The question is what is a fair rate of wages for the harbour masters and pilots; and it may perhaps be desirable that such wages should be given partly by a fixed salary and party by a percentage on fees. At present his Excellency understands they receive no fixed salary but are paid entirely by a percentage on dues. He will be glad to be informed if this is correct. The Governor in Council is always unwilling to sanction a reduction of emoluments so as to affect pre-existing incumbents. The sudden depreciation of allowances, which have been drawn for several years, may be legally justifiable, but it is nevertheless apt to induce discontent and consequent inefficiency. The Trustees might consider whether any proposed reduction of emoluments might be made in such a manner as not to affect injuriously the present harbour masters and pilots. Those who take office after the reduction has been made will of course have to abide by them.

JUBILEE.

THE ILLUMINATIONS IN BOMBAY.

Had the procession, in which his Excellency the Governor and Lady Reay and their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught viewed the illuminations on the night of the Jubilee, been under the management of a Crummles in stage management, it could not have been conducted with more dramatic effectiveness. In the presence of a member of the Royal Family who will be able to convey to the Queen-Empress those vivid impressions of the superb sight of which only an actual spectator could give any idea, Bombay must be considered fortunate above all the cities of India. That a city which owes everything of its prosperity to the rule of the last half century would do itself credit in marking the anniversary goes without saying; but few even of those, who had witnessed the festivals on which the wealthiest and most enterprising section of the people are moved by religious ardour, could have been prepared for the magnificent display which converted the streets and buildings of Bombay into avenues of dazzling brightness, and for miles transformed the most everyday buildings into edifices whose appearance transcended even the splendours of pantomime, with all the resources which Drury Lane or Covent Garden can concentrate upon the circumscribed area of the "boards." Lord and Lady Reay, with their Royal Highnesses, started from Parel at seven o'clock at the head of as imposing a cavalcade as ever paraded the city streets. Colonel Portman rode at the head of the procession, which, with sowars composing the body of guard of his Excellency, the troopers of the Poona Horse acting as escort to the Commander-in-Chief, and upwards of a score of carriages filled with the members of the staffs and a host of distinguished visitors, extended in single file for nearly quarter-of-a-mile. Government House—the future home of the Victoria Technical Institute—was in darkness and the party assembled in one of the detached bungalows. The start was delayed until seven o'clock, in order that the illuminations might be well in progress ere the Government House carriages entered the city, but as events proved in more than one instance those in charge of the arrangements had dangerously delayed the lighting up for which they had prepared. The presence of a score of coolies clambering about the scaffolding, with half the lamps under their charge still unlit, and the glare of the remainder throwing into prominence their dark figures gave them the appearance of fiends in an operatic spectacle, made all the stronger by the occasional blue and red fires which ardent spirits lit at intervals along the route, running beside the carriages with their blazing torches until the glaring hues expired with a spurt and a splutter and left the procession almost blinded from the excess of light with which it had been honoured. In the first drag, accompanying the Governor and the Commander-in-Chief, were their Military Secretaries, Colonel Lyttelton and Colonel Cavaye, and in the second carriage rode H. R. H. the Duchess of Connaught and Lady Reay. Colonel Becher, the Equerry to his Royal Highness, and Captain Phayre, Aide-de-Camp to the Governor. Lord and Lady Brassey and the whole of the Sunbeam party who are at present sojourning at Malabar Point as the guests of their Excellencies, were among the occupants of the carriages immediately following, and General and Mrs. Keating, the Lord Bishop of Bombay and Mrs. Mylne, Major and Mrs. Hannay, and a number of gentlemen invited to join the procession, also availed themselves of the opportunity for seeing the tamasha as advantageously as could be desired. The grounds in which stands the Governor's mansion in the northern latitudes of Parel had been purposely left with no more light than served to indicate the pathways, so that the first of the displays which met the procession on passing from beneath the darksome avenues came as a sudden surprise. It was that made at the gateway of the entrance to the Veterinary College and Hospital. The lighting had a peculiarly distinctive character, and though the lighted transparencies which indicated the character of the patients deserved all the merit of fitness, a sense of candour would, we are afraid, compel the Superintendent of the College to confess that the artist's idea of the anatomy of the cow and the horse with which he surmounted the porch were as primitive as that of the schoolboy—the pictures were bloated representations of large animals having a leg at each corner. As the carriages in advance reached the premises of the Morarji Gokuldas Spinning and Weaving Company they received the first volley of hearty cheers. Nothing was more remarkable throughout the earlier part of the journey which lay through the operatives' district, than the stentorian cheers with which groups of by-standers saluted the son of their Queen and the representative of her Majesty. The cheering was as hearty and unanimous and as lusty in its delivery as if it had proceeded from a ship's company of English tars. The mill hands proclaimed theirs to be "a workman's tribute," and they supplemented their shouts of welcome by the efforts of a band of musicians stationed in the compound. Flowers and garlands were showered upon the procession, an incident that was repeated over and over again in the course of the evening, until the flower stalls in the Crawford Market might have been stocked with the wealth of blossoms of which the Government House party were made the involuntary recipients. As the tramway lines were reached, the trains of cars were seen to be crowded from front to rear, not a vacant place was to be obtained beyond the starting place. All night long these heavily laden vehicles rattled through the streets with no more hindrance than resulted from the pressure of the traffic at the crossings. This mode of traversing the city thoroughfares must have enabled thousands to witness the full effectiveness of the illuminations which would otherwise have been seen only by a tithe of the people who thronged the streets thick as standing corn. The men were still lighting up the Victoria Gardens as the procession left this effort of the Municipality far behind, with the really fine displays made by the mill establishments still further to the rear. As the carriages slowly made the ascent of Byculla Bridge the ignition of a mass of red fire at the FitzGerald Hotel afforded a prospect as gorgeous and glowing as a novelist's sunset. The Byculla Schools were in darkness, their share of the Jubilee is yet to come, but through the railings of the compound came the shouts with which the youngsters greeted the Prince and Governor in their boyish treibles. Nearly an hour had passed since the procession had emerged from the Government House grounds, so the postilions urged their pairs to their topmost speed and the cavalcade rattled down the Bhendy Bazaar in fine style until brought to a halt at the mosque. The maimed, the halt, the lame, and the blind, who make its pavement their favourite resting place, had for the once abandoned its precincts, and in the place of the villainous-looking cripples who usually crouch beneath the shadow of the temple walls, were a host of Mahomedan traders belonging to the vicinity. The graceful dome and minarets above the principal entrance, shone white as marble, in the radiant light which streamed on all sides from the lamps with which it was overlaid. Through the open doorway the interior of the mosque was seen to the furthest corner of the courtyard. The devout who are to be daily witnessed by the passer-by bowing themselves in silent prayer to the Prophet, on this occasion awaited the procession beyond the gateway and made a striking demonstration of feeling, which had not subsided when the last carriage passed onwards. One of the characteristics of the Bhendy Bazaar is that almost every set of worshippers in the most heterogeneous populace in Asia has there reared its temple. To the white walls of the Mahomedan mosque succeeded the gaudily painted temples of the Jains which are clustered about Pydowni. Here hundreds of Hindus gathered, with bands of native musicians such as attend their own holy days, stationed in the full light which the glass shades threw upon the carved and painted frontages, the rows of pictures above the doorways, and the brasswork which covers the lintels and sideposts of these curious shrines. The whole of the Kalbadevi Road, was ruddy with the paint with which the coppersmiths had thickly overlaid their bazaar. As the carriages turned round by the Mombadevi Tank, they left on the right the lofty residences of the leading merchants of the city whose five or six stories open from wall to wall, showed suite after suite of room flooded with lamplight. The Marwari Bazaar was somewhat of a disappointment, though revolving shadow pictures, the electric light, the suspension overhead of precious stuffs, glittering with embroidery, all showed the enthusiasm of the residents. Despite the animated figures which blocked the windows on both sides of the bazaar, the presence of a struggling mass of people along the sidewalks, pushing, and scrambling along in a state of maddest excitement, the neighbourhood of the Cloth Market lacked the brilliancy as a spectacle which at the time of the Dewali draws all Bombay within its narrow and tortuous thoroughfares. Then the traders sitting with their newly blessed books before them, the unsullied pages still covered with the red blossoms spread thereon by the holy men, the atmosphere of the little shops yet aromatic and pungent from the burning of the sticks of sandal, their richest stocks of silks, laces, piece-goods and embroidery displayed, as if for the tempting of the new year's customers, present in themselves and their surroundings a picture of native life which never fails to attract its thousands of sightseers at every recurrence of the festival. On Wednesday night the shops were generally speaking closed, and not even all the innovations and extensions of the ordinary methods of lighting could compensate for the absence of this strikingly picturesque element in the Regent Street of the Hindoo mercers. With the Crawford Market was inaugurated the superb system of lighting provided for the public by the Municipality, the Government and the railway companies. A score or more of huge globes admirably distributed over the enormous block of buildings made the Bore Bunder station, we beg its pardon, the Victoria Terminus, stand out boldly, and upon the elaborate architectural features of the palatial pile made distinctly visible in the soft glow of the electric light, the artisticeye loved to linger with delight. Some concession to popular taste was made by the frequent burning of coloured fires, which delighted the enormous crowds who gathered along the Market Road. But we doubt whether Mr. Steven's magnificent structure ever appeared to such striking advantage as in the intervals when the delicately contrasted colourings of the masonry were brought out in the pale light with an exquisite effect. The grand climacteric of the evening's illuminations was not reached until the unrivalled series of public buildings grouped within the Fort were approached. For the remainder of its route the procession paraded through avenues lighted with a grandeur almost overwhelming. Once within the area of the Fort the procession slackened its pace to a walk. Thousands of carriages were passed on either side, charries of every description circling round the streets in an unbroken line for miles. The Government buildings, the Cathedral, the University, the High Schools, the Banks and the merchants' offices were covered with myriads of lights. Their arches and windows were radiantly beautiful, and tier after tier of fiery jewels rose one above the other from rooftop to basement. The long lines of light favoured by the uniformity of architectural design prevailing the streets of the Fort, extended in undiminished brilliancy to the vanishing point. At the Apollo Bunder the carriages halted awhile to survey the weird spectacle presented by the illumination of the shipping, and the fireworks which were ascending from the harbour. Starting afresh, it made the passage of Elphinstone Circle, and proceeding to the fair ground twice traversed the full length of this immensely popular gathering. The final stay of any length was made by the carriages before the Queen's Statue, where the grand archway overspread with ten thousand golden lights made a supremely lovely setting for the noble marble monument beneath.

The Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway may be said to have illuminated along the whole line. Every station had some evidence of loyalty and light. At Ajmere and Agra the illuminations were on an extensive scale. Sir John Bradford gave two balls on two consecutive evenings in honour of the occasion, the whole station being present on Jubilee night. At Agra the Fort formed an excellent background to the illumination of the station which rests under its walls. Every station on this line had its local committee which raised subscriptions and helped by a proportionate grant from the Company. Major Bisset was also applied to for co-operation by native committees along the route which were spontaneously formed to give due honour to the Kaisar-i-Hind. One of the requests sent in was that free passes should be granted for the conveyance of seven nautch girls, so that the local committee might be able to celebrate her Majesty's Jubilee with due eclat.

In Bombay the local line was tasked to its uttermost to bring in sightseers from Bandora, Mahim, and other outlying places. Each station along the Queen's Road was decorated and illuminated. This fine thoroughfare was also fortunate in the fine illumination which set off the spacious proportions of Adumjee Pudumjee's Mussulman sanitarium and mosque along which ran the letters "God Save the Queen-Empress of India." Mr. Panthakey's large bungalow and long garden well made a line of light some hundreds of feet long. From the Queen's Road and from Chowpatty could best be seen the tracing in bright lines the outlines of the new Parsi gardens which are the latest triumph of Mr. Olivant's constructive activity; not a lamp was wasted here, and the letters of fire making "Victoria" loom large on the hill side, gave purpose and expression to the bold sketch drawn with a pencil of light on the scarp of Malabar Hill. From the Hill itself the city was seen outlined in light against the dark sky; the Clock Tower, the as yet unfinished dome of the Bori Bunder Station, now rendered the Victoria Station, the Crawford Market and other high places seeming to be crowned in fire amidst the general glow from the unseen streets which were ablaze with loyalty. In extent and ensemble the illumination of Wednesday night was far beyond even that which welcomed the Prince of Wales to India. On the other hand the crowds, large as it was, was either less numerous or was distributed over a larger area. Nowhere was the throng so great as that which arrested all traffic on the night of the illumination in honour of the Heir to the Throne. The police, augmented in numbers, and improved by lengthened experience, were able on this occasion to assume and enforce a degree of control over the thousands of carriages which thronged the thoroughfares. Many panels were damaged and a good deal of varnish was spoiled, but on the whole accidents were arrested by the vigilance and energy of the native police, who, under their European inspectors, compelled obedience to the regulations laid down for the general safety.

Standing prominently as the first building at the entrance to the city, the premises of the Bombay Royal Yacht Club were decorated in a befitting manner. The high tower facing Colaba looked bright with many coloured flags and banners; and the smaller tower near the Club's flag-staff on the side of the Dockyard was similarly decorated. In keeping with the rest of the embellishments of the Club-house, was a string of bannerets stretching from the top of the roof across the western compound down to the water's edge. In the evening the eastern facade was lighted with hundreds of small incandescent electric lights that shone like so many stars in the waters of the harbour. The gateways and parapet walls of the compound all round were illuminated with arches and lines of tumbler buttees. From the roof of the Apollo Bunder Refreshment Rooms waved many flags attached to Venetian poles, draped with coloured cloth. All along the ridge of the lower roof of the Billiard and Bar Saloons stretched a line of gas oval moons which added to the effulgence emanating from the Yacht Club premises. Proceeding from the premises of the Bunder in the direction of the city, the large edifice endowed by the late Khunderao Gaekwar, and known as the Royal Alfred Sailors' Home, arrested attention. It was dressed prettily with a profusion of flags and bannerets from top to basement. From the top of the roof stretched lines of bannerets which were fastened obliquely to the iron boundary railings. On the terrace above the porchway were put up several Venetian poles, surmounted with silver spear heads, from which were flying many-coloured flags and banners. Similar poles fixed all round the iron boundary railings lent additional attractions to the general beauty of the other decorations. Over the porchway was exhibited the elegant shield of the Home, bearing the coat-of-arms of H. R. H. the Duke of Edinburgh, the Patron of the Home. Immediately under it, the well-executed bust of Khunderao Gaekwar could not fail to attract notice. Higher up, in the topmost gable, the massive figure of Neptune, with his attendant mermaids, and dolphins, and whales, was no less conspicuous. The entire premises was brilliantly illuminated, all the arches, cornices, parapets of the porch and the central gable being effectively picked out with tumbler buttees. Garlands and festoons of coloured lanterns attached to the boundary railings helped to heighten the effect of the general illumination of the edifice. The Wellington Fountain, which was at play during the whole of the evening, was literally bathed in floods of light with two circles of gas-oval moons of white, green, and ruby colours. A short way off in the direction of Colaba, the brilliant illumination of the Young Men's Christian Association's Rooms claimed notice. The northern gate-way showed an illuminated arch with large illuminated letters—Y. M. C. A. Directly opposite, in Rampart Row, East, the beautifully decorated and tastefully illuminated premises of the P. and O. Company and Messrs. E. D. Sassoon and Company were a credit to that part of the city. The former was rich in a display of flags and exhibited a gigantic transparency representing the Sun, glorious in the power of his early rays, rising out of the sea which those rays illuminated, with the motto underneath Quis Separabit. Three large flag-staffs had been put up beyond the foot-path on the opposite side of the road, so ingeniously arranged that festoons of flags, drawn from the top of the extreme ends of the buildings, formed a curious semicircle of banners spanning the road and adorning the building along its entire breadth. Numerous flags flying from large Venetian poles waved over the terraced roof of Messrs. E. D. Sassoon's offices; and the outlines of the building were picked out with lines and festoons of coloured lanterns and oil-buttees. All the windows of the covered gallery over the porchway made a charming display of flags and banners of variegated colours, the central window exhibiting in an elegantly-draped frame-work, placed over the Road, a transparency with a portrait of the Queen-Empress, with a motto at the top "God bless the Queen," and at the bottom "Queen's Jubilee, 1837." Proceeding up Rampart Row in the direction of the Municipal offices, the spectator was dazzled with the effulgence circling the Prince of Wales's equestrian statue. Four wooden arches had been thrown over the figures of the horse and rider, by means of which the whole was enclosed in an arcade of lights and green shades. The base of the railing and the pediment were encircled with gas-oval moons, the sides to the east and west exhibiting devices of crowns and stars with the Imperial monogram. The Municipal buildings had their main outlines picked out with oil buttees. The lower portion was decorated with a huge festoon of leaves and flowers. Flags and banners were freely utilized in the decoration; and the top storey displayed at night three good transparencies representing the Royal Coat-of-Arms, the Imperial monogram, and the Arms of the City. The Sassoon Mechanics' Institute made a modest show of oil-buttees. Messrs. Thorpe and Company made an excellent display of very large flags and numerous Chinese lanterns bearing curious devices, and the establishment was tastefully illuminated in the evening. Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son's offices were decorated with flags and illuminated with coloured lanterns. The premises of the Wellington Hotel and the offices of Messrs. David Sassoon and Company were also decorated and illuminated. Watson's Esplanade Hotel made a superb and most liberal display of the flags of all nations; and all the outlines of the gigantic premises, from top to basement, were picked out with many thousand of coloured lanterns and white tumbler-buttees. From long Venetian poles, elegantly draped with coloured cloths, waved Royal Standards, Union Jacks, and Blue Ensigns. All round the topmost terrace, a grand show of flags was made; and the mottoes expressed by most of them, in Code signals, did much credit to the loyalty of the designer. Some of these mottoes were as novel as they were loyal. On the east side was shown the motto "In Honour of our Noble, Excellent Queen;" on the west side was another "Loyal India compliments her Majesty this August Day." In the centre block, facing the University Gardens, was a third "May Health, Happiness, and Success attend our Noble Queen, Who has reigned over Us gloriously, justly, and successfully Fifty Years."

Proceeding up the University Gardens, the spectator found himself in the full blaze of a panorama of lustre such as has seldom been surpassed in this Presidency, or has seldom been witnessed in this country. The University Hall and the University Library, with the Rajabai Tower over the roof of the latter, seemed to have been transformed into things of beauty by fairy hands. From basement to top, they seemed to have been studded with countless diamonds of rich and rare brilliance; and those who carried out into execution the design of illumination that was adopted, may be congratulated on the success which rewarded their exertions. Some ten thousand coloured lanterns had been employed in lighting the east facades of the hall and the library, and the whole of the tower. In the high lantern of the tower which contains the clock-work, seven electric lamps were used as well as gas lighting in the interior of the hall and library, in order that their fine architectural outlines and the rich colouring of the stained glass windows may be exhibited to advantage. Mr. Lund, of Messrs. Lund and Blockley, had kept the tower open to visitors, who appreciated his kindness by going up and obtaining a capital birds-eye view of the illuminations in the city. A similarly favourable opinion must be pronounced in regard to the plan of illumination of the Public Works offices, the General Post Office, and the Cathedral High School. Some 16,000 coloured lanterns had been placed in position on the Post Office on the south, east, and west facades; and about half the number on the Public Works offices opposite, of which the eastern and northern facades were illuminated, all the outlines of the buildings being charmingly picked out. Coloured transparencies representing life-size portraits of her Majesty the Queen-Empress were exhibited on the first storey of the Public Works offices, and the General Post Office, east end. The Cathedral High School was similarly illuminated on the south and west sides. We must retrace a part of the way in order to notice the decorations and illuminations of some of the private buildings between the Esplanade Hotel and the Flora Fountain. The premises occupied by Messrs. Hoar and Company and Mrs. Lake's establishment the Maison de Modes, and those of Messrs. Bourne and Shepherd, Messrs. Rose and Company, Messrs. Court and Company, and Messrs. Asquith, Lord and Whitmore, were decorated with flags and bunting and illuminated with coloured lanterns and oil buttees. From the upper story of the Agra Bank premises waved the Pilot Jack; and the mottoes "Long live Queen Victoria" and "Jubilee" were exhibited from the second and first storeys respectively. The building occupied by Messrs Thacker and Company and Messrs Ardasir, Hormusjee, and Dinshaw, solicitors, High Court, made a very pretty display of the flags of all nations. Over the cornice of the first story was placed a motto with the illuminated words "Vivat Victoria." Both the abovementioned buildings were also tastefully illuminated. Messrs. Volkart Brothers illuminated the outer entrance to their offices with coloured buttees, the gateway being surmounted with an illuminated arch. Messrs. Thomson and Taylor and Messrs. Marcks and Company deserve a passing notice for the decorations and illuminations on their respective premises. The Currency offices were modestly illuminated in comparison with other Government buildings with coloured shades. Looking straight on into Ash Lane, the spectator noticed the illuminations at the offices of the Bombay and Persian Steam Navigation Company and the establishment of Messrs Cooper, Madon and Company. By the side of Temple Bar, which made an unpretending show of flags and lights, the premises of Messrs. Soundy and Company challenged notice by the richness of their decorations as well as illuminations. Several of the features of the latter being identified with the ever vigilant Waterbury Watch Company. The upper gallery had a circle of gas oval moons and a semicircle of similar moons about the Royal Coat-of-Arms, with marble busts arranged on either side, together with crystal transparencies displaying the Imperial Crown and the Royal Crown. An advertisement in the shape of a balloon, on which were inscribed the words, "The Waterbury Watch" and which tossed to and fro at a height over the roof of the premises seemed to take the fancy of the native masses, who gazed in wonderment at the monster's impudent antics before high Heaven. The premises of the New Oriental Bank, including the establishment of Messrs. Phillips and Company, looked gay with many flags and Chinese lanterns of curious designs and were illuminated from top to basement. Taylor's Hotel, the offices of Messrs. Ralli Brothers, and the establishment of Messrs. Badham Pile and Company, were tastefully decorated and illuminated.

The Bombay Gazette offices, over the roof of which the Union Jack floated majestically, displayed seven large electric lights with opal and pink globes, each with gold and silver Stars of India in the back ground,—the whole constituting a blazing star of unrivalled lustre, which not only charmed the fancy of the multitudes surging to and fro, but also received recognition from his Excellency the Governor and his Royal Highness as the procession passed. The neighbouring establishment of Messrs. Payne, Leuba and Company was magnificently decorated and illuminated. A supremely beautiful effect had been planned at the Queen's Statue. This beautiful marble monument was itself left untouched, but its base and the boundary railing surrounded with gas oval moons. To the rear of the statue an arch had been raised to the height of sixty feet with a span of thirty-eight feet, and this lofty structure was covered with ten thousand buttles. On the parapet of the arch there was exhibited a transparency showing in three lines the inscription "Victoria," "Empress," "Kaisar-i-Hind," and at the same level the dates 1837-1887, with two large crowns surmounting the piers. At the Flora Fountain gas moons were lavishly employed, a ring of them enclosing the statue at the top. Coloured lights were placed beneath the arches with centres which threw their hues upon the upspringing jets of water. The splendid block of buildings from the National Bank of India to the premises of Messrs Treacher and Company, including Messrs. Hamilton and Company, Messrs. Bolton and Company, Messrs. Francis and Fucile, and the French Bank, made a most excellent display of decorations and illuminations, Messrs. Treacher and Company's establishment rivalling in regard to illuminations some of the Government offices.

Pressure on our space compels us reluctantly to speak only in general terms of the extensive decorations and illuminations in Church Gate Street and Hornby Row. The former street was dressed with large flags liberally supplied by Mr. J. P. Watson, one of them exhibiting in Code signals the motto—"Celebrating the Glorious Reign of our Queen." A rather curious motto was displayed in which letters on a scarlet cloth of silk exhibited from the office of Messrs. N. M. Panday and it was this—"God bless thee and thine, paragon of sovereignes, Empress benign." Chandeliers and globes were suspended over the street from the offices of Messrs Byramjee Jeejeebhoy, C. S. I., Messrs. Barton, Majoo and Company the Singer Manufacturing Company, the residence of Mr. Jehangir Eduljee Davar, &c., and festoons of leaves and flowers spanned the public road. St. Thomas's Cathedral was illuminated from basement to its highest apex on the plan of the Government illuminations above noticed; while the offices of the Shanghai Bank, the B. B. & C. I. Railway, the Florio-Rubattino Company, the Austro-Hungarian Lloyd's Company, Messrs. Kemp and Company, &c., made very respectable contributions to the splendid decorations and illuminations in this part of the Fort. Elphinstone Circle was ablaze with myriads of oil buttees, and its decorations left little to be desired; while it would be difficult to speak in terms of overpraise in which the Circle Gardens were rendered a place of special recreation and enjoyment on the auspicious day. In Harby Row, the roads on both sides were illuminated with arches and festoons of tumbler buttees at the expense of Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, Sheriff of Bombay, as far as the garden in Bazar Gate Street. The offices and family residence of Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, situated in the street, were magnificently embellished and illuminated, as were also the offices of Mr. Nanabhoy Byramjee Jeejeebhoy, the premises of the Ripon Club, the establishments of Messrs. Geyer and Co., Mrs. Counsell, Mr. Vogel, Mr. Jost, the residences of Messrs. Dorabjee Governor, Framjee Ardasir Davar, the old family residence of the Parsee Baronet, the Sir Jametjee Jeejeebhoy Schools, &c. The newly-improved Gunbow Street could boast of only one loyal resident, Dr. Temooljee Bhikajee Nariman, whose residence was illuminated with large chandeliers and globes hanging over the street from the windows. We have left ourselves no room to mention in detail the decorations and illuminations made by Messrs. W and A. Graham and Company, the Wadias, and others in Parsee Bazar Street, nor those in Borah Bazar and Bazar Gate Streets, at the Manockjee Sett's Fire-temple in the last-named street, and by loyal Parsee and other citizens in those streets Suffice it to say that they did their duty to their Sovereign and their country. At the Crawford Markets the horizontal and vertical lines and arches were picked out by means of over eight thousand coloured lanterns, three thousand buttles being employed in the interior in addition to the ordinary electric and gas lighting. The top story of the central feature contained the transparency "God Bless her Majesty" with the dates 1837 and 1887. The arches over the entrance on the ground floor had the monograms of those members of the Royal Family who have visited the Markets, with the dates of their several inspections, viz., the Prince of Wales, 1874, the Duke of Edinburgh 1870, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the centre arch bearing the Imperial monogram. There was also an arch over the entrance to the garden of the Markets, surmounted by a transparency representing her Majesty attired in her State robes.

The enthusiasm which characterised the celebration in the Fort and the native town animated the good folk of Colaba into organising a very creditable local demonstration. Mr. Duxbury took up the matter of the celebration with characteristic energy and thoroughness, and securing the hearty co-operation of neighbours, succeeded in collecting a sufficient amount to erect a very handsome triumphal arch, for which Mr. Rienzi Walton had prepared plans. The arch, which had a very substantial appearance, spanned the road from the Post Office to the compound of Mr. Alfred King's bungalow. It was in the composite style of architecture, the castellated towers being surmounted by a kind of dome and pierced with doorways. It had been ornamented with the Royal Arms surmounted by a trophy of flags, and bore the inscription "1837—God Save the Queen—1887" in letters of gold on both sides. At night the arch as well as the bungalows in the immediate neighbourhood were illuminated with Chinese lanterns coloured lamps and oil buttles, presenting a spectacle which was at least pleasing if not very pretentious.

Although the combined resources of the Government, the Municipality, and the general public had served to render the decorations and illuminations in the Fort most attractive, there was, perhaps, no part of the town, where one failed to see some evidence of the loyalty of the people in the shape of banners and buttees. At the end of the Esplanade Road, the building which chiefly attracted attention was the Native General Library, which, being draped in scarlet and numbers of coloured flags, made a brave show. Then passing down Breach Candy Road was to be observed a white cloth hung aloft across the road, showing a portrait of her Majesty, which was flanked on either side by the inscriptions, "May thy reign be still more prosperous," and "Thanks, Lord Reay, for your Victoria Jubilee Technical Institute." In the vicinity of this place, something by way of illuminations and decorations was to be observed in front of Dr. Cowasjee Hormusji's house, and a little further on a native gentleman displayed shields, recalling the memory of Balaclava, Ashantee, Abyssinia and other places. Turning down Churney Road the illuminations at the Munguldas Mill, the Albless Baugh, and Mr. Punthaky's residence attracted most attention. Mr. Adamji Peerbhoy had also made a lavish display of lights at his Sanitarium opposite the Churney Road station. Some of the bungalows at Gowalia Tank Road were brilliantly illuminated, and among the residences on Malabar Hill, which made a festive display on the occasion, may be mentioned the bungalows of Mr. Nanabhoy B. Jeejeebhoy and Mr. Dosabhoy Framji, C.S.I. Mr. Dosabhoy had lighted the open verandah and the upper gallery of his house with argand lamps, and in the garden were hung Chinese lanterns in profusion. But by far the most attractive show was made at the charming gardens laid out along the slope of the hill. The walls were fringed with oil buttees and some hundreds of the lamps were so arranged as to form the word "Victoria," which was plainly visible from a considerable distance. Along with several private houses at Grant Road, the Native Music Club had made a suitable demonstration of loyalty. At some distance from this place the Western India Flour Mills, which occupy the site of the once well-known Royal Theatre, exhibited buttees, arches and two excellent transparencies with appropriate mottoes. Further up the residence of Mr. Ellapa Balsram, with its pretty little tower, was most tastefully illuminated, and the gateway was surmounted by a likeness of the Queen-Empress. There were not a few houses illuminated in Khetwady and Girgaum. The Girgaum Police Court building, which is conspicuous by its darkness on all festive occasions, was this day not behind the other public buildings in putting on a gay appearance. Mr. Dosabhoy Framji, the Presidency Magistrate, presiding in that Court, having ordered the illuminations at his own expense. The whole building, which is a two-storeyed one, with a small turret at the top, was lighted from its basement to its summit with thousands of lights laid out tastefully in the upper and lower cornices of each of the storeys, in earthen pots and tumblers. The terrace shone with hundreds of coloured lights, while the compound railing was similarly adorned. Under the porch was hung a handsome chandelier and a large number of Chinese lanterns waved among the foliage of the trees in the compound.

The illuminations in and about Byculla and Parel and the neighbourhood were anything but profuse, and a sightseer, leaving the fairy scene presented by the Fort and its environs, would have felt on Wednesday evening like entering into outer darkness if he had proceeded to the outskirts of the city. It is not implied that loyalty dwelt not in the bosoms of the residents of these delightful suburbs, they appeared as loyal as any of the other citizens of Bombay and showed their feelings—most of them leaving their habitations in darkness by journeying to the Fort, there to right loyally appreciate the good things prepared for the enjoyment of all by the city fathers and to feast their eyes on the lovely scene. The fact that only a few residences, a portion of the Victoria Gardens, and several Mills, here and there were illuminated, brought more prominently into notice the darkness of their surroundings. As the general interest naturally centred in the Fort it was hardly to be expected that the localities skirting the city would make anything of a grand show. Of those houses which were illuminated the palm must be given to the residence of Dr. Thomas Blaney. Here it appeared neither trouble nor expense was spared in beautifying the house and grounds. Appropriate mottoes, and transparent likenesses of the Queen-Empress and the Prince and Princess of Wales were placed in prominent positions. The establishment of the cabinet-maker, Mr. Jamsetjee Nowrojee, at the foot of the new bridge, was gay with flags and bunting and buttles. In a similar manner the grounds and building of the Education Society Press were handsomely done up, with however the addition of pretty Chinese lanterns interpersed among the foliage. The Freemasons' Hall in Clare Road made a humble display of rows of buttles, and further on, over the bridge, the railings of the Victoria Gardens were illuminated in the same manner. The Great Eastern, the Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, and one or two other mills in Parel showed off in the rays of many coloured lights and the inevitable buttie. Further on Lowjee Castle and a few other residences attracted notice by their display of similar illuminations.

Among the mills which paid their tribute to the general celebration in the way of decorations and illuminations were the Great Eastern S. and W. Mill, the New Eastern, the Hindoostan, the Empress, the Connaught, the James Greaves, the Kaiser-i-Hind, the Sunderdass and the Anglo-Indian. The workshops of the B. B. and C. I. Railway were decorated, and the Institute was made quite gay for the nonce with pyramids of oil buttles.

Grant Road presented a lively scene as regards illuminations in that quarter. The principal house illuminated was that of the Native Philharmonic Society situated at the foot of the Grant Road Railway Overbridge. This was profusely illuminated with glass lamps, Chinese lanterns and with a transparent scene of her Majesty the Queen-Empress with the words "Long live" inscribed by its side, then came the Moss Building, the outline of which was traced with coloured lamps which had a good appearance. There were several other houses on this road whose frontages were lit up with globes and tumbler lamps. The Girgaum Back Road also presented a gay appearance with the frontage of several houses being lit up with tumbler buttees as in the Dewalee festival of the Hindus. The principal houses which attracted the notice of a sightseer on this road was the Chenia Baug, the residence of the late Hon. Morarji Gokuldas. Mr. Bhaishanker's premises and those of Mr. Pandoorung Ragoba also presented an excellent appearance, being lighted with gas jets and oil lamps. The other native residences were lighted as during the Dewalee festival. The Parsee fire temple at 1st Paree Wada Street, Khetwady, was profusely lit up with tumbler lamps. Other Parsee residences at Khetwady also made a good show of tumbler and coloured lights. The Pinjrapole was lavishly illuminated, as well as the Mombadavie temple, the Marwarree Bazaar and the road from the Pydowni Police Station through Kalbadevie up to the Money School presented all the familiar aspects of the grand day of the Dewalee festival. To the usual beauty of the lighting were added the introduction of several electric lights, suspended across the road at the distance of 100 paces from each other, and a show of flag and banners which were suspended across the road on lines bearing mottoes "God bless the Empress of India," "Long live the Empress of India" and others of a similar character. The principal building which attracted the notice of the spectators were the residence of Mr. Sewlal Motilal, whose place was beautifully illuminated with gas jets besides coloured lamps. Here his Excellency the Governor and H. R. H. the Duke, and their suite, paused awhile, when Mr. Motilal presented them with garlands and nosegays. The premises of Mr. Panamchund Punalall Jowahires, which were also lighted with gas jets, besides oil lamps and globes, presented a grand appearance as well as the shop of Keeka Padumsey, nearly opposite the EOS photographers. Hormusjee Byramjee, photographer, and the Bombay Photographic Company's premises on this road made a splendid show of lights at the frontage of their premises, and some of the sign-board painters on the opposite side of the road followed suit by exhibiting a good show of light and transparent scenes. Messrs. Furtado and Brothers and Mr. Ramchunder, musical instrument seller, made a display of colured lights. The Javer Baugh premises adjoining Mr. Sewlal Motilal's premises and the Hindoo temple of Mooljee Jetha, situated on the Kalbadavie Road, also presented a laviah show of lights, which also attracted considerable notice.

A very large concourse of people was attracted at the Apollo Bunder to witness the lighting of the shipping. The illuminations in the harbour were at once weird and magnificent, and hundreds of boats went cruising about the placid waters, which reflected the lights in every direction. The power employed in lighting the vessels ranged from the ordinary candle lamp to the coal incandescent and the powerful arc systems of the electric light with which the Government vessels have been fitted. In the matter of illuminations as in that of decorations during the day, the Admiral's Flagship, the Bacchante, carried off the palm of superiority, but her rivals were not far inferior. So artistically were the lamps and other lights arranged, picking out the prominent positions of the vessels, that the several ships were distinctly distinguishable from a distance. The Bacchante was illuminated with white lights along the yard arms and in the same position in which the flags were placed in the day. From nine till eleven she showed blue lights at a distance of 18 inches each around the rails and around the mast heads. During the same period she repeatedly discharged volleys of rockets, averaging about sixty an hour. Later on, after the fireworks were over, she displayed the electric search light—a powerful light used for reconnoitring purposes at sea and illumining to a very great distance. Her Majesty's troopship Jumna, which is fitted throughout with electric light, made use of 500 incandescent lamps and three very powerful lamps of 400 candle-power each, for the purpose of illumination, with an adjunct of about 228 white lights arranged on the balwarks. Between six and nine she also showed 24 blue lights. The Indian Government paddle steamer Lawrence was equally well lighted up. She commenced her illumination about seven o'clock with 306 candle lamps placed along the ridge-rope and round the sponsons with a splendid electric light lamp in the centre of the paddle box. Between nine and eleven o'clock she showed blue lights, taking her signal, as did the other vessels, from the Bacchante. She also let off rockets at intervals. Lord Brassey's yacht, the Sunbeam, was also well lighted up, and at frequent intervals showed red and blue fire and let off rockets. The Semiramis, the Auckland, and the police hulks were also well lighted. The turret-ship Abyssinia, which was stationed just in front of the Apollo Pier was not the least daintily illuminated, her outlines having been very well picked out with white lights, with capital effect. Nor were the displays made by the private steamers in their way inferior. The B. and P. S. N. Co.'s steamer which only arrived in the harbour that morning was illuminated well, and with blue lights about 8 o'clock. The Thirlmere which was also lighted showed blue lights about 9 p.m. With the broad band of light emanating from the Jumna, the vast flood of illuminations from the Bacchante, the Lawrence and other vessels mentioned above, reaching as far near as the steps of the Apollo Bunder, the effect was superb and had a charm all their own.

At the Prince's Dock the P. and O. steamships Peshawar, Siam, Brittania and the Mirzapore were illuminated with Chinese lanterns.

JUBILEE FESTIVITIES AT BANDORA.

BANDORA was quite en fete yesterday, when the citizens of this little town showed their loyalty by generally decorating and illuminating the places. A pretty large sum had been spent on giving eclat to the celebration, and the exertions of the committee, consisting of Dr. Gonsalves, Messrs. C. C. Mehta, D. L. de Monte, Succaram Tatya, M. C. Pereira, Fazulbhai Ebraim, and Gunputrao Ramchander, were well rewarded in the result. A feature of the proceedings was a procession of several hundred of children of the St. Joseph's Convent, the Bandora and the Thomas Aquinas schools.

After the procession had paraded through the town and passed through localities which were freely decorated with flags and bunting, the children, who bore banners inscribed with loyal mottoes, were treated in the compound of St. Andrew's Church, at the foot of Bandora Hill. Early in the day the poor, who were not forgotten, were given clothes and other comforts which were quite unknown to them. Altogether the general festivities passed off well, and marked a red letter day in the annals of the town. The general rejoicings concluded with a grand pyrotechnic display on the sea beach behind St. Andrew's Church.

THE ADDRESSES TO THE QUEEN.

The following was the address presented by the Senate of the University of Bombay at Wednesday's ceremony:—

To Her Imperial Majesty, ALEXANDRINA VICTORIA, by the Grace of God, Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, Empress of India.

YOUR MAJESTY,—On the joyful occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of your Majesty's accession to the throne, we, the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor and Fellows of the University of Bombay humbly beg leave to approach your Majesty with a respectful assurance of our dutiful and affectionate loyalty to your Imperial person and of our heartfelt congratulations on the completion of half a century of your Majesty's auspicious reign. Cast in a happy time of progress and prosperity your Majesty's rule has been doubly fruitful in blessings to your people through the influence of your personal benignity, and we desire gratefully to acknowledge that gracious influence made manifest in the increase of purity, charity and mutual goodwill; of enlightenment, loyalty and patriotism amongst all classes of your Majesty's subjects. In your Majesty's career of beneficence, calmness and wisdom they have found a pattern for their lives, and an object of their veneration. In none of your Majesty's subjects are these sentiments more deeply implanted than in the members of the University of Bombay. It is in the confidence of true and single-minded devotion that we venture to present to your Majesty this tribute of felicitation, of homage, and unwavering attachment to your Imperial person.

Among the causes that have made your Majesty's reign illustrious, none have had nobler results than the progress of learning and the increased breadth and energy of the teaching of literature and science in all parts of your Majesty's dominions. The life and action of the University of Bombay are a part of this memorable development. Born in an hour of darkness and tempest our University has passed unhurt through the perils of its infancy under the benign protection of favouring laws and of a Government free from jealousy and deeply sympathetic with the people's progress in intellectual and moral as well as in material welfare. Fostered thus and supported by your Majesty's representatives, unimpeded and encouraged in its cultivation of learning, and its development of the high and free exercise of thought, the University has prospered even beyond its hopes as beyond its merits. In its name we desire to express its fervent gratitude for the favours with which it has been blessed and for he aid it has received in this the first generation of its career which comes auspiciously to completion in his Jubilee year of your Majesty's accession to the throne.

The generous bounties of your Majesty's Government to the University of Bombay have stirred up amongst your Majesty's subjects in Western India a noble rivalry of private benefaction. Confident in the honour of their rulers and in the stability of the institutions under which they have prospered many members of the community have endowed the University with a portion of their wealth. They have thus sought to second your Majesty's exertions and desires for the highest welfare of your Indian subjects. For have their efforts and their sacrifices been made in vain. Disciplined and illuminated by the higher education that centres in the Universities the people of India, but especially of the Presidency of Bombay, have learned to understand their manifold advantages as subjects of your Most Gracious Majesty and as members of a great, enlightened and generous empire. They perceive and value their part in its material prosperity, but they prize most of all the treasures of thought and noble principle and stimulating example which they have gained from British genius and experience. Led thus to a craving for more intimate relations with the central community of your Majesty's Empire they have seen a gradual but steady progress in the growth of mutual sympathies and of the interchange of moral and intellectual influences which promises a timely realization of their loyal aspirations. The years of your Majesty's reign have brought the diverse peoples under your Majesty's dominion into closer and closer communion with each other. Enlarged freedom has been found compatible with an intenser attachment to essential institutions and to the throne in which they centre, as each member of the great aggregate feels himself called to a wider and nobler activity within the expanding circle of your Majesty's Imperial sway. Your Majesty's rule as a reign of piety, justice and benevolence encourages a generous hope of ever-growing mutual love amongst your subjects blended, however remote in place, by a common and hearty attachment to the throne into one vast family, governed and actuated by identical principles, sharing the same glories, feeling the same anxieties, and participators alike in the achievements and the influences by which the British Empire is destined to stamp its impress on all the future of the human race. A marvellous expansion in the facilities of communication between distant regions of the world has fitly coincided with the reign of a Sovereign whose gentle influence has tended to make every increase of acquaintance a new bond of brotherhood amongst men, but especially amongst the peoples of your Majesty's widely extended realm. We earnestly hope that under the blessing of the Almighty God this kindly influence may more and more prevail, and that your Majesty's reign may thus stand forth in history not only as glorious in itself, but as the commencement of an era of happiness, peace and good-will amongst the nations of the earth.

No part of your Majesty's empire has enjoyed a larger share of your Imperial attention and regard than India and its people. Rejoicing in their prosperity, distressed at their calamities, your Majesty, watching their good and evil fortune, their virtues and failings with the tender solicitude of a mother of her people, has won an unparalleled return of trustful affection from the millions who are proud to count themselves your lowly children. Members of your Majesty's august family have come among us, bearing messages of generous kindness and confidence. They have taken back to your Majesty faithful reports of the abounding loyalty of the unfeigned gratitude and joy with which such messages were greeted. One son of your Majesty dwells in our midst, reflecting in his sphere of duty your Majesty's devotion to the good of your people, and with his noble Consort affording an example of winning affability and condescension in the highest rank and of generous interest in the humblest soldier and peasant. Such evidences of your Majesty's love and care we see with a responsive gratitude common to us, and your Majesty's other subjects in India, but to us as the humble representatives of learning it especially belongs to appreciate and acknowledge the felicity of our situation and the unspeakable benefits that we owe to your Majesty's mild and calm and sympathetic rule. We see literature and philosophy occupying year by year new fields of thought and of research. We see science dowering society with new comforts and conveniences and now inviting our studious youth to a mastery of the long hidden resources of nature. Some acquaintance with history sets the past before us in startling contrast with the present. Side by side with the oppression, violence and anarchy of other times we place the moderation, justice and regular administration under which we live. We look back into the social and political immobility or retrogression of India during many centuries, and then turning to your Majesty's gracious Proclamation on assuming the direct government of this great dependency, we hail its declarations as a precious boon, full of generosity and goodness in the present and holding out the inspiriting prospect of an infinite progress in the future to India and its people.

Thus grateful, hopeful and bound by the ties of the most sacred allegiance and love to your Majesty's Imperial throne and person, we pray that your reign may be prolonged still for many years of peace, prosperity and happiness, rich in the blessings of your people, in the fruition of past toils and sacrifices, in the noble consciousness of great duties greatly fulfilled, and in the bright anticipation of a splendid future for the British Empire brought nearer to accomplishment by your Majesty's policy, principles and example.

The following is the address presented to H. E. the Governor for transmission to the Queen-Empress by the Bombay Native Piece-Goods Merchants' Association:—

We, the undersigned members of the Bombay Native Piece-Good Merchants' Association, beg leave to approach your Majesty with this humble address of congratulation on the occasion of the Jubilee of your Majesty's prosperous and illustrious reign. It is extremely difficult for us to express in adequate terms the great joy and satisfaction we feel when we contemplate the innumerable benefits conferred on this country during the past fifty years of your Majesty's beneficent rule—years that have been eminently marked by progress in every department of life, in literature, science, art and commerce. Turn where we will, there are evidences of a settled prosperity and peace of a high refined and advancing civilization which were never before known in the history of India, and to the establishment of which we are in no small degree indebted to the personal interest and exertions of your Majesty. It would be impossible to enumerate all the glorious deeds and achievements which will for ever perpetuate the name of your Majesty as that of a kind, generous, and noble Queen, who is the very embodiment of all that is good, gentle, and virtuous in human nature, and who is universally esteemed and loved as a mother by all classes of your subjects, without distinction of caste, colour, or creed. But we cannot help referring here to two events of your Majesty's auspicious reign which come home to us most pleasantly and forcibly as natives of India, and as men interested in the advancement of commerce and trade throughout the world. We allude to the charitable and philanthropic movement inaugurated under your Majesty's immediate auspices for the supply of Female Medical Aid to the Women of India, for whose pecuniary wants your Majesty has invariably manifested a tender and solicitous regard, and in promoting those comfort and happiness your Majesty has always shown the liveliest and sincer at interest. The other event to which, as merchants, we attach no small importance, is the attempt to weld together England's great Colonies and Dependencies into an harmonious commercial commonwealth, to encourage among them a thorough and sympathetic intercourse, and to establish between them such a firm bond of amity and brotherhood as should exist between communities allied to, and deriving all their light and grandeur from, the same parent country. Other instances might be multiplied without limit, in which the same guiding principle has prevailed in fixing the policy observed during the long and auspicious period that has elapsed since your Majesty ascended the Throne, a principle which aims at nothing else but the amelioration of the condition of your subjects throughout the vast Empire over which you rule. But we would refrain from entrenching upon your Majesty's valuable time by dwelling upon what is matter of history, and would content ourselves here by expressing our ardent wish and prayer that a reign fraught with such splendid and happy results may be prolonged for many and many a year to come, and that a career which shows such a triumphant record of useful and philanthropic work, quietly and modestly accomplished, may still continue for a long time. In conclusion, we would beg to assure your Majesty of our deep sense of loyalty and devotion to your Throne and person, and our humble but heartfelt gratitude to you for all the security and comfort, liberty and happiness, we enjoy under your just and equitable rule.

THE DURBAR AT CALCUTTA.

(BY TELEGRAPH, FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

In the course of his speech at the Durbar, the Viceroy directed attention to the necessity for improving agriculture, reclaiming waste land, drawing away the redundant population from congested centres, opening up fresh industries developing of native industries, and extending the movement for the better medical treatment of women. In conclusion, he spoke in eloquent terms of the mighty mission that England has been called upon to undertake in India, which aimed finally at evolving from its present intricate and imperfectly adjusted mechanism a homogeneous community, so well balanced and co-ordinated, so united in its material interests and in its moral convictions, as to form a loyal, patriotic and compacted whole. Within what period this result is to be achieved is a secret hidden in the distant future, but of one thing we might be sure, that there is no determination more fixed and immoveable in the wish of England, there is no wish dearer to the heart of her Majesty and the British people, than faithfully, firmly and courageously to discharge the difficult and stupendous duties, which he had enumerated, in the interests and for the benefit of India.

Colonel LeGeyt then laid the foundation stone of the Institute amidst loud cheers. The National Anthem was sung by the school boys and girls, who were feasted with sweetmeats. Verses specially composed for the occasion by the Durbar board and others were read. They evoked great enthusiasm.

Two imposing processions, one of the Jain community and the other of Mahomedans, were then formed. The ceremony was a great success It terminated with the distribution of otto, garlands, &c.

A grand Durbar was held in the Palace at 6 p.m.

The town was splendidly illuminated. There was also a display of fireworks provided by his Highness.

MEETING AT GADAG.

(BY TELEGRAPH, FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

GADAG, FEB. 16.

The Jubilee celebration commenced this morning at eight o'clock, when a large concourse of people, who left Gadag and Betigeri simultaneously in procession with native music and children singing, met at the Municipality Hall. There a great meeting was held. Many speeches were delivered, and poems suited to the occasion were read and sung in the vernacular. Dr. Cardoz, who presided, in a brief and appropriate speech explained the object of the ceremony, and Rao Saheb Dattatraya Kashinat, the chairman of the Municipality, read the address to be presented to the Queen-Empress in English. Mr. Annarao Jalisal, the head master of the English school, explained in Canarese the opening speech of the president and translated the address in extenso. The Rev. Mr. Ernest followed with an able and eloquent speech, dilating upon the many blessings the people of India have enjoyed under her Majesty's reign.

A volley was fired amid loud and hearty cheers to the Queen. The children were then regaled with sweetmeats. The proceedings terminated with a prayer for long life and happiness to our Gracious Sovereign.

FESTIVITIES AT JUNAGHAD.

(BY TELEGRAPH, FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

JUNAGHAD, FEB. 16.

The Jubilee Durbar, which was attended by over one thousand people of all ranks in a grand pavilion near the Palace, went off most successfully. The scene was most picturesque and imposing. The proceedings commenced with the delivery of a kharita from his Excellency the Governor to his Highness the Jamsaheb by the Political Officer. An address from his Highness the Nawabsaheb, and its reply from the Political Officer were read out in English. Gujerati verses in Sanscrit and Gujerati were recited by pandits, and a speech in praise of the Queen-Empress was delivered by a Brahmin advocating the cause of temperance. His Highness announced, in commemoration of the Jubilee occasion, the founding of the Victoria Jubilee Junaghad Scholarship, of the value of Rs. 3,200 a year, to enable deserving young men to receive a liberal education in England; and the Victoria Orphan Asylum in Junaghad. Several prisoners were released, and remissions were made of outstanding advances to cultivators in years of distress. The Durbar dispersed after the usual distribution of attar, pan-flowers, etc., amidst the booming of an Imperial Salute, the band playing the National Anthem. There was a distribution of sweetmeats in the Durbar and among the populace in general throughout the territory. A State dinner was given to Europeans. There were fireworks and illuminations on a general scale in the evening and a public exhibition was held for delivering prizes to the pupils of the several educational institutions.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Female Complaints.—On the mothers of England devolves much and serious responsibility in securing for their daughters robust health; frequently, alas! thoughtlessly sacrificed by culpable bashfulness at a particular period of life, when all important changes take place in the female constitution, upon the management of which depends future happiness or misery. Holloway's Pills, especially if aided with the Ointment, have the happiest effect in establishing those functions, upon the due performance of which health and even life itself depend. Mother and daughter may safely use these powerful deobstruent remedies without consulting any one. Universally adopted as the one grand remedy for female complaints. These Pills never fail, never weaken the system, and always bring about the desired result.

GANDY'S AMERICAN COTTON BELTING
TO those having the use and care of machinery it is of the greatest importance to know what is the best belting to use to transmit power. To such and to all the answer is, USE THE GANDY BELT.
It has imitators, and this is the strongest proof possible, that is an article that is worth spending cash on to imitate. If it were a worthless article, or one that had not been VERY SUCCESSFUL, no one would go to the expense and trouble to imitate it. Imitation is the strongest form of flattery, and those who imitate the "GANDY" belt are proclaiming to all belt users, that the GANDY belt is the best that has ever been put before the public.
The GANDY belt has acquired such a deservedly high reputation, that belt users, after having tried all others, come back to Gand and declare that, notwithstanding the difference in price, they find it to their advantage to the American Cotton Belt made, only by the inventor and patentee.

PHOSPHORUS THE GREAT REMEDY FOR DISORDERS OF THE NERVOUS SYSTEM.
IT is agreed by all Medical authorities that PHOSPHORUS plays a very important part in the NUTRITION of THE BRAIN and NERVE-TISSUE, and possesses SPECIAL CURATIVE VITALIZING and ENERGIZING PROPERTIES.
In OVER BRAIN WORK, MELANCHOLIA, EPILEPSY, HYSTERIA, NEURALGIA, LOSS of NERVE POWER, and other Manifestations of NERVOUS EXHAUSTION PHOSPHORUS IS INVALUABLE.
DR. WOOD says: "PHOSPHORUS in NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, whether involving the cerebra or special centres, is of GREAT VALUE. I have seen marked benefit from its use when the symptoms were not severe enough to indicate organic lesion, but the most remarkable results have been in cases in which the structure of the centre was apparently deeply indicated. In threatened BRAIN SOFTENING it is the ONLY drug that can ARREST THE DISEASE. In NEURALGIA its use is commended by season as well as by experience and gives SPEEDY RELIEF."
DR. PEREIRA says: "PHOSPHORUS excites the nervous vascular and secretory organs, increases the fullness and frequency of the pulse and heightens mental activity and muscular power.
H. AND T. KIRBY & CO.'S
PREPARATIONS OF PHOSPHORUS are made according to Dr. Kirby's Formulæ, and it is admitted that in NO OTHER FORMS can PHOSPHORUS be administered so safely or effectually. Syrups and all Liquid Preparations being either INERT or DANGEROUS. The following combinations are largely prescribed—
IN NERVOUS DEBILITY, SCIATICA AND NEURALGIA PHOSPHORUS AND QUININE PILLS GIVE SPEEDY RELIEF.
This valuable combination of two powerful tonics is a very useful restorative, and is found most beneficial in the treatment of diseases of a low type in CONVALESCENCE from FEVERS and other acute exhausting diseases. As a tonic and antiperiodic it is largely used in India in some stages of fevers and to counteract the exhausting influence of the excessive heat of the climate
IN LOSS OF NERVE POWER PHOSPHORUS, IRON, QUININE AND STRYCHNIA PILLS ARE INVALUABLE, as also in all cases of MAL-NUTRITION, whether the consequence of acute diseases, such as FEVERS, BLOOD POISONING or result of OVERWORK, DISSIPATION, Indulgence in ALCOHOLIC STIMULANTS or excess of any kind, and in cases of WAKEFULNESS, FEEBLENESS of MEMORY, GIDDINESS and TREMBLING of the VOLUNTARY MUSCLES on EXERTION and some forms of SKIN DISEASE.
EARLY DECAY OF MENTAL VIGOUR AND PREMATURE OLD AGE.
LOWNESS of SPIRITS and ATONIC DYSPEPSIA arising from OVERWORK and IMPOTENCE IN OLD or DEBILITATED SUBJECTS, are much alleviated by a course of PHOSPHORUS and NUX VOMICA PILLS.
IN BRIGHT'S DISEASE,
after the acute symptoms have subsided
PHOSPHORUS and CANTHARIDES PILLS act very beneficially, as also in ATONY or PARALYSIS OF THE BLADDER, producing INCONTINENCE of URINE.
The abovementioned preparations are largely prescribed, together with other combinations described in Dr. Kirby's Work on the REMEDIAL VALUE of PHOSPHORUS, which may be obtained from any of the Agents mentioned below.
CAUTION—Messrs. H. & T. Kirby & Co. caution the medical profession and public against imitations of their preparations. Some are Exceedingly Dangerous and others Inert. Every Bottle of the Genuine Pills bears their Trade Mark. Sold in Bottles, price Rs. 2, Rs. 3-8, and Rs. 6-8 each. The large Bottles contain sufficient for a course of Phosphorus extending over 3 to 6 weeks.

TEETH LIKE PEARLS,

white and sound teeth, perfect freedom from decay, a healthy action of the gums, and delightfully fragrant breath can best be obtained by discarding gritty tooth powders and acid washes and using daily or Pearl Dentifrice, a white powder composed of the most recherché ingredients of the Oriental herbal, and warranted free from any gritty or deleterious ingredients; it whitens and preserves the teeth, prevents and arrests decay, eradicates scurvy, strengthens the gums, and gives a pleasing fragrance to the breath, while its anti-septic and anti-scorbutic properties exercise a highly beneficial influence on the teeth and gums. All Dentists allow that neither washes or pastes can possibly be as efficacious for polishing the teeth and preventing decay as a pure and non-gritty tooth powder: such ROWLANDS' ODONTO has always proved itself.

No other Odonto is genuine.

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL is now sold in a golden colour for fair and golden-haired people and children.

ROWLANDS' KALYDOR beautifies the complexion, eradicates all cutaneous defects, and renders the skin soft, smooth and delicate. Ask anywhere for 'ROWLANDS' articles, of 20, Hatton Garden, London, and avoid spurious and pernicious imitations
